Re: Training to Prevent Financial Exploitation-NJ Adult Protective Services

Dear Mayor:

NJ Adult Protective Services, through a federal Social Services Block Grant, has developed community trainings to help educate residents of a community about the types of financial exploitation that occur following a disaster and the most effective ways to respond. Trained instructors will bring this no-cost training program to a municipality, organization or community group. In addition to the 90-minute training, each participant will receive a handbook containing practical information on this topic. These “mobile trainings” are intended for the residents of storm-stricken communities in New Jersey. Up to 60 trainings will be provided under this grant, which are expected to begin in March 2015.

To download a flier to promote this training which can be disseminated throughout your community, please go to: <http://www.njslom.org/Post-Disaster-Training.pdf>

To schedule this free training session in your community please contact Julissa Vizcaino at 848932-0510 or jvizcaino@ssw.rutgers.edu.

If you have any questions, please contact Jennifer Mills, State Coordinator of Adult Protective Services, a division of the State Department of Human Services, at 609-588-6501.

Very truly yours,

William G. Dressel, Jr.
Executive Director
